The manuscripts collections of Fragile Palm Leaves Foundation are a precious resource for the study of the Buddhist literary and ritual culture of Southeast Asia. The present volumes are the first in a series of catalogues of Burmese-script palm-leaf manuscripts in the Pali and Burmese languages. The reasons for the large production of manuscripts in the mid-nineteenth century are not clear at present. Certainly, older manuscripts deteriorated, and eventually succumbed to the forces of impermanence. Many would have been lost in the fires that ravaged the wooden monasteries, and others would have been destroyed in the conflagrations of war. It was copying and recopying that preserved ancient works by passing them down to future generations.

Peter Nyunt was born in Yangon (Rangoon), Myanmar (Burma) as Myo Nyunt and graduated from Rangoon University with a Bachelor of Arts in Burmese Language and Literature. He worked as Historical Research Officer in Myanmar and has written two books in Burmese, and over 400 articles in Burmese newspapers, journals, and magazines. In 1980 he migrated to England and worked for The International Meditation Centre (U.K.) as Publicity Officer, for BBC (Burmese service) as outside contributor, and was visiting examiner for SOAS (Burmese Department, London University) and for the Pali Text Society (PTS) in Oxford (U.K.). In 2012 he translated and published the Catalogue of The Piṭaka and other texts in Pali, Pali-Burmese, and Burmese (Piṭakat-tō-samuiṅ:) for PTS. He now lives in Perth, Australia.

FOREWORD

We are pleased to present these three volumes compiled by Peter Nyunt in the series “Materials for the Study of the Tripitaka”. The Fragile Palm Leaves Foundation manuscript collections are a precious resource for the study of the Buddhist literary and ritual culture of Southeast Asia. The present volumes are the first in a series of catalogues of Burmese-scription palm-leaf manuscripts in the Pali and Burmese languages.

Volume 1 catalogues one thousand manuscripts containing 1863 titles. They date from 1624 (Lokavidū, ms. 238) to 1923 (Ṭīkā kyō pāṭh, ms. 710). Volume 2 registers five thousand manuscripts containing 10,738 titles. They date from 1641 (Khuddakasikkhā-dīpanī-pāṭh, ms. 4139) to 1939 (Pakhukkā-vinicchaya, ms. 3428). Volume 3 lists 4896 manuscripts containing 10,104 titles. They date from 1659 (Cūḷāvā-nissayya, ms. 7791) to 1939 (Kammavācā, ms. 10,004).

This shows that the manuscripts in the Fragile Palm Leaves collection cover a period of 300 years. As is the case with other Pali manuscript collections, the great majority dates from the second half of the nineteenth century. The texts recorded on the manuscripts belong to a wide range of genres. In the Pali language we find volumes containing canonical texts, aṭṭhakathās, ṭīkās, sub-ṭīkās, manuals, etc., and in Burmese we have biographies, glosses of Pali texts, Jātakas, and so on.

The fact that books continued to be produced on palm leaf into the first half of the twentieth century is particularly interesting, since it shows the persistence of manuscript culture well after the rise of the printed book in Southeast Asia. Was this as result of the ideology of merit, which had traditionally assured that texts were copied and recopied. The sponsorship of texts was considered to be as productive of merit as was the production of images of the Buddha. This idea is expressed in the verse:
Every single letter of the Dharma
Is equal to an image of the Buddha:
For that very reason, an intelligent person
Should write down the Three Piṭakas.
In the Dharma of the Buddha
There are 84,000 teachings:
Therefore, where there is a Tripiṭaka
There there are 84,000 Buddhas.

This verse is regularly placed at the very end of manuscripts by the Burmese scribes. In Pali literature we find it in the Saddhamma-saṅgaha,1 composed at Ayutthaya in the fifteenth century, and in the Saṅgītiyavaṃsa, composed by Somdet Phra Vanarat at Wat Pho in the first reign (1782-1809) of the Ratanakosin dynasty.2

The reasons for the large production of manuscripts in the mid-nineteenth century are not clear at present. Certainly, older manuscripts deteriorated, and eventually succumbed to the forces of impermanence. Many would have been lost in the fires that ravaged the wooden monasteries, and others would have been destroyed in the conflagrations of war. It was copying and recopying that preserved ancient works by passing them down to future generations. When manuscripts were no longer copied, the result was, inevitably, the eventual loss of some texts. If economic hardship or social instability

2 Saṅgītiyavaṃś. Baṅśāvatār retuṃ1 saṅgāyanā braḥ dharmavinaiy. Somdec braḥ Vanaratana Vat Braḥ Jetuban nai Rājakāla di1 1 teeni1 bhāṣā magadh, Brahyā Pariyāti Dharmadhātā (Bee Tālalaksana) periyen pleen bhāṣā daiy, Bangkok 1923 (repr. as cremation book 1978) [History of the councils on Dhamma and Vinaya. led to less copying being done, that could lead to periods when fewer manuscripts were produced. Changes in curriculum, changes in ritual use, changes in copying practice would all lead to fluctuations in the number of manuscripts produced. In Thailand, the increase in production may have been connected in the increasing financial clout of the nobility and the mercantile classes in an expanding economy during the early Ratanakosin period.

We are grateful that Lumbini International Research Institute has undertaken for many years to digitize the Fragile Palm Leaves Foundation collection with a view to making it available to researchers. We appreciate the painstaking work of Peter Nyunt in preparing these catalogues on the basis of the database. We especially thank Christoph Cüppers for his continuing personal interest and support of this project.
